The best Nusa Lembongan Surf spot here! Crystal clear waters, mechanical waves with easy paddle through canals, boat trips to the sights, exceptional views of Bali volcanoes, it's there for an absolutely magical surfing experience. Nusa Lembongan Surf Tips Spot surf near Nusa Lembongan, Blue Lagoon Nusa Ceningan @saltsealive Best Tide: Depends on different spots on the island, usually mid-to-high tide for beginners. Best wave size: 2-12 feet (0.5 - meters). Guides will take you to the right surf spots based on your level. Surf spot type: Sharp reef break (surf boats are recommended). Shipwreck is one of the Nusa Lembongan Surf Spot, an iconic breakup of Nusa Lembongan marked by a bow of rusty ships on a long exposed reef platform. Non-existent at low tide, it begins to break on the thrust in the middle and begins to rise from nowhere, peeling quickly with a high and narrow envelope and an open shoulder. It's packed with surfers of all standards, so taking one and avoiding scratching is part of the deal. Getting the right tide is the trick - in the middle of the springs, higher on the neaps. Watch out for scrap metal on the reef. A fun and workable right that breaks on the medium-high tide. (SHIPWRECKS - LEMBONGAN SURF REPORTS AND FORECASTS HERE) 2. Lacerations Nusa Lembongan Surf Spot, Hard core right with excellent open tube on offer as the tide floods the sharp, shallow reef. It's a pitching, air fall inlet from the peak in a straight cane section, then an additional crappy bowl as it approaches the canal marked by floating mooring lines that litter the bay. Not easy, not long and not empty, but it is more challenging than the nearby Wrecks and Playgrounds. Occasionally on the left are makeable and there are some other hollow and ridiculously shallow sections of the reef nearby. A hollow right barrel at high speed. (LACERATIONS SURF REPORT AND FORECASTS) 3. Ceningan Outside the SW tip of the newly populated Ceningan Island is a left-handed man who trains undulating walls with a nice steep pocket and predictable sections. Some protection from trades, but it can become messy with currents and deep-sea channel that affect swelling. Good little bulge, low tide option when Lembongan doesn't work, becomes powerful and sketchy when the bulge jumps. This Nusa Lembongan Surf Spot is best accessible by boat, though there are a few ways along cave-swallowed cliffs, but it's sometimes crowded. Locals say it's shark. (REPORT AND FORECAST CENINGAN SURF) 4. Playgrounds Playgrounds Nusa Lembongan surf spot is nestled under the cliffs which offers good se commercial protection, this is the easiest place to use on Lembongan. It's an easier paddle, being closer to shore, keeps breaking with lower tides, is a little deeper and offers wall to work compared to the flat barrels nearby. Lefts are better with some opportunities to hit lips along a tapered wall, while rights can throw slightly, but fade quickly. Constant current to paddle against and the entire area is surrounded by a flotilla of cruisers, pontoons and pleasure boats that meet Bali's daily influx a gentle left and right peak that provides a wave when the bulge is small and the tide is low. Good place for beginners and intermediates. Don't expect too much, but it can be a very nice wave. Definitely fun! The left usually works better than on the right. It can get crowded. 3h before and after high tide. Surf ReporterLast time updated in December, Wednesday 2 at 6:10 a.m. Indefinite Regional Morning Report: It's a small surf, extreme low tide, and (mostly) glassy conditions to start the morning. We have a combination of fade and new SSW swells on the roster today, but most points are struggling to show much of both at the moment due to the tide. The points that work mostly work under the high waist right now, with standouts occasionally seeing high chest/shoulder sets. Light W wind, with cleaner on the east coast, but the west side isn't all that bad. Regional outlook for the rest of the day: Most points should improve as the tide and the new long-term SSW (200) both swell and the wind becomes even lighter/variable until mid-morning. Look for chest-to-head high surfing with the overhead sets for the top facing in SSW break in the second half of the day and the light+ S wind for the afternoon. Large tidal swings. Oscillations.
